Forecast for Thursday 24 Sep 2020

Weather: Clear skies through the early hours will give way to thicker cloud spreading northwards. Then a cloudy, wet start as spells of showery rain moves in on fresh to strong easterly winds. Rain will clear away southwards from late morning to leave a bright afternoon with sunshine and a few showers. Mainly dry with clear spells through evening.

Chance of cloud free mountain/hill tops above 700m: 20% with cloud fairly extensive above 600-700m, improving 70% by afternoon with summits mainly clear away from passing showers.

Visibility: Reduced to several kilometres at modest height in rain and several hundred meters in summit fog. Much improved through afternoon.
